These are exciting times for Alamy. We've now exceeded the 15 million image mark, confirming our position as the world's largest online stock photo site. And we're also entering a new phase of growth with the opening of a sales office in New York.

Our continuing expansion means clients can choose from an ever changing selection of diverse picture collections from all over the world. With such a comprehensive range, added to on a daily basis, there's always something fresh and new whether customers are looking for mainstream, specialist or hard to find imagery.

The Alamy website now has a new filter for images which are suitable for the commercial market. Although this is still in development, it is already proving to be a valuable resource for our advertising and design customers.

Find out more about Alamy and our plans for the future by visiting our sales team at the Picture Buyers' Fair. You'll find us on stands 174,176, 178 and 180.
